Jersey City, NJ — February 28, 2011 — AvePoint Inc., a proven leader in providing infrastructure management software solutions for Microsoft SharePoint, today announced it has been named to KMWorld magazine's "100 Companies That Matter in Knowledge Management" for 2011. Marking AvePoint's second straight year on the renowned list, KMWorld magazine recognizes solution providers delivering world-class technology to meet the specific, customized business needs of organizations worldwide.

"We are honored to be named to KMWorld's prestigious top 100 list two years in a row", said Chris Foreman, Senior Vice President of Sales & Marketing for AvePoint. "Organizations dealing with ever-expanding stores of digital information are turning to Microsoft SharePoint in order to not only to centralize enterprise-wide content, but to use that content in such a way as to nurture true collaboration and help make better business decisions. Since opening our doors in 2001, AvePoint's primary objective has been to help organizations realize the platform's true potential with solutions for comprehensive SharePoint lifecycle management. Being named to KMWorld magazine's list is not only a gratifying honor, but also reaffirms our continued progress toward achieving this objective."

The KMWorld "100 Companies That Matter in Knowledge Management" list, now in its eleventh year of existence, is borne of a collaborative effort among the magazine's colleagues, analysts, system integrators, and end-users to analyze the 1,000-plus organizations in the knowledge management space. This group then selects the top 100 not only committed to excellence and technological innovation, but show a fervent dedication to understanding their customers' specific needs and offering software solutions tailored to meet those requisite business requirements.
